

Dear Graduate Student Candidates,

Together, we are witnessing the extraordinary conditions of the pandemic we are in. In this extraordinary period, the duration of which cannot be determined, we experience together how important it is to cooperate, be flexible, adapt to change, be solution-oriented and protect the world we live in, while trying to live our lives according to the current conditions. The Covid-19 pandemic period we are experiencing, by placing "Health" at the center of life; once again reminded us of the need for innovative research in health sciences. The fact that there are many health problems waiting for solutions from you, dear young people, causes the burden on your shoulders to increase a little more.

The Health Sciences Institute, empowered by the wide health network of Başkent University, has an academic structure that has a place and prestige in the international arena as well as in our country. At the institute, a dynamic graduate education is provided which teaches inquiry, is practical, research-oriented and renewed depending on scientific developments. It has been designed by academic staff who carry out innovative research in the field of health sciences within the framework of universal ethical rules, aiming to research new and better treatments and develop new processes in order to make patients healthier.

Başkent University, Institute of Health Sciences was accredited by Turkish Higher Education Quality Council in January 2022 and becomes one of the five Health Sciences Institutes accredited in Turkey. Currently, education continues in 17 master with thesis, 5 non-thesis master programs and 17 doctorate programs in 23 departments. Graduates who are equipped with up-to-date knowledge and specialized in their fields make a difference by bringing innovations in addition to easily adapting to the environment they work in the public, private sector or academia. Başkent University Health Sciences Institute, which wholeheartedly believes that our country will reach the level of contemporary civilizations with well-educated and well-educated young people; invites you, esteemed young people, to develop your career together by expanding your horizons in order to open new horizons, to produce creative and innovative ideas outside of routine and conventional thoughts. For detailed information, quotas and application conditions for the 2022-2023 Academic Year fall semester, you can visit Başkent University Health Sciences Institute website, for further questions, you can contact the relevant department heads or the Institute authorities via e-mail / phone.

May the light of science always illuminate your path.

Prof. Dr. F. Belgin ATAÇ

Director of Institute